Singapore, 2 July 2018 – PwC Singapore is pleased to welcome five new partners to the firm today. The firm also warmly welcomes Simon Tong who came on board as a partner in the South East Asian Consulting practice.

Against a rapidly evolving business landscape, companies today are dealing with increasingly complex issues and challenges brought about by globalisation, technological disruption and intensifying competition. The diverse areas of expertise of the new partners – across financial services, tax, fintech, digital & organisational transformation – reflects the way the business environment has changed, and will further strengthen the firm's ability to address the evolving needs of their clients and the wider business community.

Said Yeoh Oon Jin, Executive Chairman, PwC Singapore on the new appointments:

“Congratulations to our new partners on achieving this key milestone. While disruption poses new and evolving challenges for businesses, it also presents opportunities for those that are willing to adapt and ride the wave of change. I am confident that the uniquely diverse skill sets, global experience and fresh perspectives of our new partners will greatly add to our collective expertise to help clients deal with transformation and disruption to achieve the transformative change they seek.”
